Living a very sheltered life, Linda didn't realize how different things were at home compared to those of her friends. She had a sweet innocence about her that made the man of the house very proud. While all of her friends made fun of her and mocked her, she knew that she could take solace at home.

Linda was taught to play silly games at home that would never make sense to her friends or the outside world. She knew she had to keep these games a secret. Vowing to never be made fun of again, she didn't share a word about the games the man of the house taught her.

One of her favorite games was called "Lickin' Lollipops". That game would forever change Linda and her innocence. Soon, she would learn exactly what her friends had been trying to tell her all along.
