Judgement at Nuremberg

This is playwright Abby Mann's third version-the first for the stage-of his classic, Academy Award-winning work, Judgment at Nuremberg. His original script was first produced for television by Playhouse 90 in 1959. Then he expanded it into a screenplay for the famed Academy Award-winning film in 1961. Now he has adapted and revised his film script, and Judgment at Nuremberg appeared for the first time on the Broadway stage in the spring of 2001.

Based on the transcripts of the Nuremberg Trials of Nazi war criminals, Judgment at Nuremberg depicts the trial of four German judges accused of crimes against humanity for their role in carrying out the heinous laws enacted by the Nazi regime. Mann condenses and focuses the events of this tribunal into a riveting exploration of the nature of justice and responsibility. In a world of expediency and extremists, can an absolute morality exist?

"The play...maintains a fullness of legal and moral argument . . . key questions apply to both the Germans and the Americans trying them ... A play that gives oratory the muscle, sweat, and high stakes of a last-man-standing-prizefight." (Bruce Weber, The New York Times)

"The background to the play is impeccable, and the courtroom story it displays is fascinating." (Clive Barnes, New York Post)

"Mann has injected a heightened feeling of self-doubt that reflects the current Zeitgeist...A magnificent re-enactment of the seminal trials of the modern era." (Andrew Nagorski, Newsweek)
